On 25th May 2024, the Department of BT and BI not only bid farewell to departing members but also honoured the winners of the Cidering and Bio Hackathon Competitions. The event commenced with a warm welcome to all attendees. The atmosphere under the Orange Shelter was vibrant and filled with anticipation. Guests were greeted by the event coordinators, who set the tone for the day with a brief overview of the agenda.

The core of the day was dedicated to recognizing the outstanding achievements of participants in the Cidering and Bio Hackathon Competitions. The winners were called to the stage and presented with certificates in recognition of their innovative contributions. The Cidering competition, known for its creativity in beverage crafting, saw Nidhi, Sneha Kaur, Khushi Singh, and Aryan emerge victorious. In Bio-Modelling, Rajluxmi Singh, Harshita Mussania, and Prachi Dwivedi were celebrated for their groundbreaking techniques and solutions in bioinformatics.

The Head of the Department of Department of Biotechnology and Bioinformatics, Prof. Dr. Sudhir Kumardelivered a memorable speech. In their address, he praised the members for their hard work and achievements throughout the year. They reflected on the progress made by the club and emphasized the importance of continual growth and learning. Their words served as a source of inspiration, highlighting the value of the member's contributions to the department and beyond. Following the HOD's speech, the three Faculty Coordinators; Prof. Dr. Hemant Sood, Prof. Dr. Tiratha Raj Singh, and Dr. Saurabh Bansal took to the stage to share their thoughts and experiences. Their speeches were filled with gratitude and encouragement, acknowledging the dedication and effort of the students. They provided valuable insights into the impact of the members' work and offered advice for future endeavours. The coordinators' remarks were both motivating and appreciative, further enhancing the sense of accomplishment felt by the attendees. The event concluded with a poignant farewell address by the President of the club, Vipasha Sher. Her speech was both a tribute to the departing members and a celebration of the club's journey. The president expressed gratitude for the collective efforts of everyone involved and extended best wishes for future endeavours.

The ambience under the Orange Shelter was both celebratory and reflective. Attendees enjoyed light refreshments and engaged in lively conversations, making the occasion not only a formal farewell but also a social gathering filled with fond memories and anticipation for future opportunities. The farewell event was a successful and heartfelt occasion that honoured both the achievements of its members and the collective journey of the club. The recognition of competition winners, the inspiring speeches from faculty, and the goodbye note from the club president collectively marked a fitting end to this chapter. As members move on to new ventures, the spirit of collaboration and excellence fostered by this event will inspire and guide them.
