Professional Summary

I have been working in the areas of languages and linguistic discourses for a few years, as a learner and a researcher. My scholarly interests lie into the social, political and philosophical understanding of languages and cultures. In addition, I have keen interest in the subjects of literature, society, cinema, and history which keeps me grounded as a scholar and helps me grow as an individual. I look for pursuing a career as an educator in higher education, preferably in an interdisciplinary environment.

Key Skills

- Proficient in communication
- Good knowledge of language learning and teaching
- Fine coordination skills
- Critical thinking ability
- Good at in-depth analysis of a subject
- Excellent knowledge of English and Hindi
- Good at academic writing and editing.

Education

- Completed PhD from Department of Humanities and Social Sciences, IIT Tirupati in April, 2023.
- Completed 2 years of Master of Arts in Linguistics from Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi in 2017.
- Completed 3 years of Bachelor of Arts (Hons) in English Literature from Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi, UP in 2015.

Doctoral Dissertation Subject

- My thesis, titled, ‘Gendered Discourse of Language and Nation: A Study of Maternal Icons in the Performance of Nationality in India’, tries to underline the link between the aspects of linguistic nationalism and gendered manifestations of nationality. In my research, I present that language and gender represent conjoined indexicalities through which nations and national identities are imagined, constructed and performed.

Work Experience
